Dear Ms. O'Brien:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated March 14, 2013, for any and all FOIA requests and communications by or between Thomson Reuters Corporation (including their employee); Reuters Group (including their employees); The Washington Post (including their national enterprise editor and independent author David Finkel or other WP employees), and the U.S. Army concerning the July 12, 2007, aerial weapons team Baghdad air strike in the district of New Baghdad and/or a video of the incident entitled: "12 JUL 07 CZ ENGAGEMENT ZONE 30 GC Anyone.avi" (aka: 'Collateral Murder') and supplements our letter of April 10, 2013.

A search with other elements of this command and the automated Defense Central Index of Investigations (DCII) has been completed. This index reflects the holdings of all investigative elements within the Department of Defense. As a result of the DCII check and search by other elements of this command no records responsive to your request were located.

This no record response is made on behalf of Major General Stephen G. Fogarty, Commanding, U.S. Army Intelligence and Security Command, who is the Initial Denial Authority in this matter under the FOIA. You have the right to appeal this response to the Secretary of the Army. If you wish to file an appeal, you should forward it to this office. Your appeal must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of this letter (excepting Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays). The mailing address is:
